Flightlines Editor of 16 years - RIP*

Tribute to Chris Clarke R.I.P. who made FlightLines his own for 16 years

Recently, MACI lost a wonderful member of its association who dedicated himself as Editor of "FlightLines" for a record breaking 16 years to bring aero-modelling news to the many MACI members throughout Ireland. The presentation can only be described as brilliant and professional and written in a way that held you to the pages of this glossy magazine with tons of photographs which were mainly from his own collection when he didn't have enough mailed from members to fill his pages. I personally looked forward to the postman calling and would tear open the envelope in the middle of breakfast to read Chris's editorial.

FlightLines was not Chris Clarke's only port folio. During his 21 years as a member of MACI he sat in the Secretary General's chair for 7 years while doubling his responsibility and in his later years he held the position of President in 2017 and 2018 again doubling his responsibility as Secretary General in the latter year. I was honoured to accept the President's chain of office and I will treasure his smiling face in the relevant photograph.

Our sympathies go out to his daughters Susanne and Gaynor and to his extended family.

Chris always lit up the room with his smile and great sense of humour and will be sadly missed by all his MACI colleagues.
